USS Saipan visits GTMO

Ship and crew get some R&R

“Moored – Shift the Colors!”

For anyone near North Wharf ‘B’ on Wednesday, those words could be heard as the amphibious assault ship, USS Saipan, LHA 2, pulled in alongside the pier.

The Tarawa-class ship, homeported in Norfolk, has been underway since January 19 in support of Operation New Horizons 2005. During this exercise, U.S. military forces will build several school houses, drill wells and provide free medical assistance to people affected by the recent hurricane season.

This operation is part of a two-month deployment to the Caribbean, where humanitarian assistance has been and will continue to be provided in Haiti.

The ship has a crew complement of 65 officers and more than a 1000 enlisted members, and according to the fact file, is 820 feet long and 106 feet wide. The ship’s speed is approximately 24 knots when underway. This ship also can host a Marine Detachment of nearly 2000 U.S. Marines.

The Saipan returned to sea Thursday to continue operations off Haiti, and according to JOC Thomas Kreidel, public affairs officer, USS Saipan, will then steam in the NAVSOUTH operating area and enjoy two more port visits before returning home to Norfolk in about a month.

NAVBASE congratulates MA3 Nixon for his outstanding service.

Third annual Missoula Children's Theater returns to GTMO

by JO1(SW) Spencer Webster

Children of GTMO families recently participated in the third annual Missoula Children's Theater, a program that provides kids an opportunity to experience the arts by performing in a 50-60 person cast musical show based around some children's fairy tale. This year, 58 children signed up for the singing, speaking and dancing parts for the event with the theme of The Frog Prince.

According to the web site for Missoula Children's Theater (<http://www.mctinc.org>), this program started across the country and has now, with its increasing popularity, gone around the world.

"The Missoula Children's Theatre International Tour Project is the largest touring children's theatre program in the U.S.," the site says. "The concept is based on a week-long residency during which a team of two staff Tour Actor/Directors develop and produce a full-scale musical with 50-60 local children as cast members. This season MCT will send out 27 teams to put on approximately 900 residencies, which include over 55,000 young performers in all 50 states, Canada, Europe, South America and Asia."

According to Ken Miller, assistant publicist and W. T. Sampson High School math teacher, the work the kids put in during practices and the musical itself paid off.

"They had to memorize the songs and speaking parts as well as memorize positions on the stage," Miller said. "They will have learned something during the past week; about self-discipline, putting on a show and doing it correctly. The kids, from high school students to elementary students, all work together and gain the experience together."

Miller said, however, that the largest benefit the children earned from this experience was the sense of accomplishment and the confidence that goes with that.

"I think the most positive aspect of this program is the confidence that gets built up in these kids because they walk away with such a sense of self-confidence and accomplishment," he said. "At the end of the week after their second performance, they were just brimming with confidence and happiness."

With Parent Teacher Organization (PTO) sponsoring the annual event, Miller looks forward to next year's event, especially for the value of its entertainment.

"The PTO has taken this on as its project, so this likely will continue. They have gotten nothing but positive comments about the shows and I think people want to see it return," Miller said. "The kids were tremendous. The kids did such an awesome job. Every year it gets better and better and better. It is just good, wholesome family entertainment."

Seabees repair worn out bridge; replace old wood with new

A Seabee assigned to Self Help hammers a nail into one of the new wooden planks used to repair the GITMO River bridge during a recent repair project Recently, members of Public Works Self Help completed repair work to the GTMO River bridge. This bridge has allowed U.S. Marine security force personnel to traverse across the bridge to maintain fence-line security for decades.

"During the four-day project, the six personnel from Self Help removed the old wooden boards that were worn out, broken or rotted and replaced them with new wood," said CE1 Brian Dula, crew leader and LPO for the Self Help team.

The repairs Self Help accomplished will allow the Marines continued access to the bridge until a newer bridge is installed at some point in the future.

The Seabees of Public Works Self Help include BUC(SCW) David Tyson, CE1 Dula, EO2 Robin Serrano, UT3 Rachel Thompson and two people from NMCB-4 include BU3(SCW) Joe Lorenzana and BUCN Jed Mark.

For the Seabees, it was another successful job accomplishment.

"Seabees Can Do!" Dula said. "It was easy for us."

Get a green thumb with a Plant Chit card

In January, 2005, the Housing Welcome Center implemented a new process for use at the Plant Nursery.

The center no longer sends e-mails with Plant Chits. It now issues only one Plant Chit card per housing unit, which are only good for the entire calendar year.

The Plant Chit cards (see image below) are labeled with blocks for each month, which get punched when used.

If a card is lost or stolen, another may be obtained at the housing office. Patrons will still be able to save their months, as in the past and still be able to use up to four months of un-punched blocks.

Plant Chit cards are available at the Housing Welcome Center, building 2295, in between HRO and MWR during normal working hours, M-F, 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

For more information, call Tabree at 4172.

Creature Feature: West Indian Manatee

by Paul Schoenfeld,
Natural Resources
Manager

The West Indian manatee (Trichechus manatus) is a marine mammal that was listed as an endangered species in March 1967. This species is generally considered to consist of two subspecies, the Florida manatee and the Antillean manatee. Florida manatees are found in the southeastern United States. Antillean manatees are found from Brazil to Mexico and in the Caribbean. This is the subspecies found at GTMO.

Manatees are large gray mammals. Adults may grow over 13 feet and 3,500 pounds however, they average ten feet and approximately 1000 pounds. Manatees generally swim slowly and have a habit of lingering just below the surface of the water. Manatees cannot turn their heads and must reorient their entire bodies to locate and eat food.

Manatees have low reproductive rates hindering their recovery from endangered species status. Females are not sexually mature until at least five years old. Adult females only give birth once every two to five years so the loss of just a few individuals is significant to an already reduced population with a low rate of recruitment.

Over the last three and a half years, we know of two manatee mortalities at GTMO. This is a significant loss to our manatee population. Manatee surveys taken over the last five years indicate a very small population in GTMO waters. Surveys range from zero to seven animals seen in any given survey.

High-speed boat strikes are the single largest threat to manatee populations. It is so significant that manatee biologists have actually cataloged the pattern of propeller scars on manatee backs and can identify individual animals by these scars (for manatees that survive the boat strike). It is not that manatees cannot get out of the way, but that they hear low frequency sound underwater. Propellers generate a high-pitched sound that manatees do not hear well. What little sound they do hear from an oncoming boat is also multi-directional and manatees cannot pinpoint the location of this hazard. Because manatees cannot turn their heads, by the time they boat it may be too late to react.

GTMO has manatee conservation measures in place and there are several things you can do to help this legitimately endangered species. First, obey the NO WAKE ZONES. (For those new to boating, a wake is the V-shaped wave off the stern (rear) of the boat caused by the boat moving quickly.) Manatees are frequently seen in these zones feeding in the grass beds or lingering just below the surface. If you are running a boat fast in the NO WAKE ZONE, you are in violation and increase the likelihood of striking a manatee. So when entering a NO WAKE ZONE, reduce your speed to idle. GTMO NO WAKE ZONES are all the Windward channels off the main bay, the entire Leeward shoreline extending 150 yards from the shore (called the MANATEE CONSERVATION ZONE), the Saint Nicholas channel and all waters beyond the Saint Nicholas channel especially including the Guantanamo River. All these areas are high-use manatee areas. GTMO has also implemented an Early Warning Communication System for notifying boats of the presence of manatees, as is done on most other military bases with manatees. When you see a manatee, notify Port Control on VHS Channel 73 or telephone 4188. When you notify Port Control, tell them how many manatees, what size and the general direction of their movement. Port Control will mirror this information to all vessels on the bay informing them to avoid the area or slow to idle speed if already within the area. This is a proven system that significantly reduces the probability of striking a manatee.

Another technique that helps manatees is staying in the channels when running boats at high speeds, even if the water is deep enough to "cut the channel" and take a short cut. Manatees generally hang around in shallower waters, over grass beds, but rarely linger in the deeper channels. Although it is possible to see manatees in any of our waters, staying in the channels when running at high speeds will significantly reduce the probability of striking a manatee.

Remember!

Lobster season is closed in the manatee conservation zone

(the entire leeward shoreline from Caracoles point to Leeward Point)

Extending out from the shoreline 150 yards
1 February through 1 July

This is also a no wake zone year round

VITA Returns to GTMO: provides tax preparation

The Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program was developed to provide free, top quality tax preparation assistance to low-income people. Given our isolated location, during the tax-filing season VITA services are extended to anyone on Base required to file a US tax return.

There are many advantages to using VITA services: VITA is a free electronic service provided by volunteers who are thoroughly trained and certified. Electronic filing results in reduced preparation time, improved accuracy, and a quicker refund than paper prepared returns.

The main VITA tax center is located in Building 760 (the old "White House"). Additionally, a satellite tax center is located at Camp America. While scheduling your appointment you will be asked a quick series of questions and based upon your responses, you will be advised as to what documents you need to bring to your appointment. All taxpayers (and their spouses if filing jointly) are required to bring a valid picture ID and proof of all required social security numbers (e.g., the SS card, a SSA statement, active duty military ID, or a copy of last year's return). Additionally, you should bring proof of all income (e.g., W-2s, interest statements, 1099-Rs, etc.). A Power of Attorney is required if filing for your spouse. If you wish to use direct deposit, you must know your bank's routing number and your account number.

For an appointment at the main tax center call 4280 or 4314. For Camp America appointments call 3545 or 3548.
